What the EU has done in the past weeks in response to the COVID-19 Pandemic and the position of the PES Group

Cities and regions, and in particular those led by progressive forces, have initiated - in addition to measures taken at national and European level - concrete actions to support the hospitals and elderly care structures and to support the economy and in particular SMEs. Cities and regions have come up with new forms of public services to alleviate the burden on those impacted by the consequences of the pandemic.

There has been a lot of solidarity between cities and regions too. Sometimes this support was even cross-border such as the French patients from Alsace taken to hospitals in Rheinland-Pfalz, Baden-Württemberg and Saarland.

The PES Group launched a project online to try to map all these initiatives of solidarity within and among regions and cities to which all members have been invited to contribute.

Find out more about this project by clicking here

If you wish to contribute you can check the form online available at this link.

The European Committee of the Regions is currently trying to map these initiatives and also put in place a sort of “exchange of stocks” or platform in order to allow solidarity requests to meet offers of solidarity. You will receive more information by the administration on this.

On the political level, the PES Group calls for:

1. a lasting relaxation of the fiscal rules of the Stability Pact where the national or regional co-funding would be excluded from the debt calculation
2. an increase of co-financing rates for Structural Funds such as in the previous crisis
3. a swift agreement on an ambitious MFF as part of the response to the COVID-19
4. if a deal on the MFF cannot be found, the Council should quickly adopt a contingency plan prolonging the current programmes to 2021 with fresh funding
5. the creation of European bonds or “Corona bonds”

Christophe Rouillon, president of the PES Group, presented these points to the Party of European Socialists’ Leaders meeting on 26 March, ahead of the European Council.
On 26 March, the European Parliament approved the European Commission’s proposal to allow the use of the so far unspent budget funds of the cohesion policy in the fight against the Coronavirus. The Commission for Territorial Cohesion Policy and EU Budget (COTER) of the European Committee of the Regions, led by the PES Group member and Vice-President of the Nouvelle-Aquitaine Region (France), Isabelle Boudineau, fully supported this via a written procedure, given the urgency of the case. The text of the letter is available here. The PES Group reacted with a press release that you can find here.

Cohesion policy shows once more its potential in this crisis, thanks to European Commissioner Elisa Ferreira (PES, Portugal) who submitted this proposal. During a meeting of the PES Network on Cohesion Policy, Ferreira said that cohesion policy shows once more its potential in this crisis, since the financial means available in the last year of Multiannual Financial Framework are very limited. The decision by the European Parliament and the Council to support the use of unspent cohesion policy funds is a step in the right direction but more flexibility in the implementation of cohesion policy is essential. Speeding up negotiations for the next EU budget is now more important than ever, because we cannot afford another breakdown for the economy in the aftermath of the coronavirus crisis.

The European Council of 26 March also gave new guidelines, including tasking the Eurogroup to come up with new proposals. Nine countries suggested European Recovery Bonds (this is the last chance for the EU to show solidarity, they said). The final statement of the European Council is available here. The European Commission is tasked with preparing a coordinated “exit strategy” for lifting social isolation measures. More information is available here. The Eurogroup will be held on April 7 and several voices are speaking up in favour of the Eurobonds idea:

The European Commission launched on 1 April a new short-term unemployment insurance mechanism, SURE, proposing a new short-time work scheme to help the most affected EU countries, including Italy and Spain.

As PES Group, we support the proposal of Commissioners Nicolas Schmit and Paolo Gentiloni, in charge of Jobs and the Economy respectively. This temporary instrument should be the basis for a proper unemployment reinsurance scheme, as explained by Iratxe García, President of the S&D Group:

Moreover, after its first proposals made on Friday 13 March on financial aid of €37 billion through the structural and investment funds, the European Commission presented on Thursday 2 April a second initiative mobilising EU structural and investment funds to boost the European response to the coronavirus and its socio-economic consequences.

In response to the criticisms made by some Member States on the measures of 13 March, the Commission is considering further amendments to the Regulation (1303/2013) laying down common provisions between the Structural and Investment Funds, in particular the European Regional Development Fund (ERDF), the European Social Fund (ESF) and the Cohesion Fund (CF).

The proposed measures go in the direction of certain requests made by the Member States and the European Parliament, and include: - the possibility of a co-financing rate of up to 100% for regions affected by the pandemic; - the possibility of transfers between ERDF, ESF and CF; - the possibility of transfer between categories of regions, from the richest to the poorest regions and vice versa.

The European Parliament (EPP) will adopt a resolution on a comprehensive EU response to the COVID-19 pandemic at the next mini-plenary session of 16 April. As PES Group, together with the S&D Group in the European Parliament, we will strive to influence this proposal.

The European Commission announced that it will work on a revised proposal for the Multiannual Financial Framework (MFF). It will include new tools for Europe’s recovery plan after the COVID-19 crisis. An adjustment on the figures is also expected, taking into account the lower expected Gross National Income and also possible new direct resources for the EU budget, in line with the European Investment Bank and European Central Bank new instruments. The proposal should come by the end of April, but it is not clear whether the crisis has really changed the mind of national governments on the need to approve a new MFF fast. Moreover, a European Council that would decide on the MFF cannot be held via a video conference, hence possibly not before June.

Flexibility in cohesion policy is still being discussed. As demanded by France and Spain already, there could be the possibility to allow moving resources among regions. Italy is urging for an extension of eligible expenses and for the possibility for temporary adjustments to be reabsorbed by the new MFF.

Until the new MFF entries into force, the provisional exercise would continue under the current MFF, but there are no meaningful amounts left from the 2014-2020 envelope. The idea could be to freeze new commitments and payments under cohesion policy, allowing the Common Agricultural Policy to continue, while freezing rebates.
As PES Group, we wrote a letter to President von der Leyen asking that the new MFF not only strengthens cohesion policy - which has proved also in this crisis to be the key tool to help cities and regions deal with the consequences of COVID-19 - but also makes sure that the objectives of the European Green Deal are met. This is an opportunity to create a new European economy based on sustainability and just transitions.

In addition, our political family has published their positions:

- “25 proposals to overcome the crisis”, by the S&D Group in the European Parliament
- “Europe needs a Recovery Plan to overcome the corona crisis”, by the Party of European Socialists
- “Women are on the front line of the corona-crisis, yet gender-issues are being ignored”, by PES Women

A new initiative by the European Committee of the Regions

The Conference of Presidents decided on 24 March to launch an Action Plan with five actions to help regions and cities in their efforts to combat COVID-19:

1. foster EU support to local and regional authorities in the health sector, via the call for an EU Health Emergency Mechanism;
2. become a platform to exchange, cooperate and facilitate mutual support between cities and regions across Europe;
3. provide through CoR mechanisms concrete feedback from the local and regional angle on how to address the health, emergency response, social and economic aspects of the pandemic and their impact on people and their local communities;
4. provide regular and practical information to local and regional authorities about EU measures to address the crisis;
5. facilitate a reality check on the ground of the EU's measures to fight the pandemic; gather evidence to improve EU policies based on the experiences of the local and regional level (policy health check).

These actions and measures will be accompanied by targeted communication actions to explain what the EU is doing to support local communities in their fight against the Coronavirus pandemic.
The fight against fake news

The European Union has been at the centre of a campaign of disinformation and fake news in recent weeks. As EU Commission Vice-President Josep Borrell (PES/Spain), head of the European External Action Service, said at a press conference earlier this week: “Disinformation is playing with people’s lives. Disinformation can kill.”

Pro-Kremlin disinformation outlets launched a strong attack to sow distrust wherever possible: in the healthcare system, national institutions, the EU, and the World Health Organisation. They also spread fake news about the virus and how it is not dangerous and how it can be cured at home. This is very dangerous because it puts people’s lives at risk. It is important to remind everyone to rely only on authoritative sources to get updated information on the COVID-19 outbreak.

On 31 March, the President of the European Commission, Ursula von der Leyen, shared a video message about the danger of fake news and about the work the EU is doing with online platforms to facilitate access to trustworthy sources (click on this link to watch the video https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=jZooWOdU1xq&t=11s).

As local and regional politicians, you are on the frontline of fighting also this type of battle. Here are a few instruments to help you:

Initiatives for cities and regions

European Commission’s Intelligent Cities Challenge Webinars

To help cities navigate through the current crisis and implement appropriate responses, the European Commission is launching a wide support package for COVID-19 to facilitate peer learning and sharing of best practices from European and global cities on effective city-led interventions. As a first step, the Commission is organising two city-focused interactive webinars to learn, exchange practices and support city administrations. The first one is taking place on 4 April at 4 PM CEST.
